SENTIMENT IS UNANIMOUS IN FAVOR OF NEW COUNTY

MANY FROM THIS CITY TO MARCH IN BIG PARADE

Richmond Parliars, Native Sons and Native Daughters, will celebrate Mission Day in San Francisco today. They will be accompanied by the Richmond Band, and the delegations from here will have a prominent place in the parade as well as in other features of the program.

The Native Sons from here will go decked in natty uniforms, the ornamental features of which will be white hats and shirts and red neckties. The Native Daughters will also wear appropriate costumes, and the Richmond contingent is expected to make a fine appearance in the parade.

Other parliars of Contra Costa county will attend the celebration and together with Richmond will have headquarters. Several delegations from this county will be in the parade and take part in the exercises.

PLAYHOUSE INVESTMENT BE QUARTER OF MILLION

Turner and Duhnken, the proprietors of the new theater on Macdonald avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets, have just completed their estimates of the cost of the new theatre when it is completed and ready to be thrown open to the public, which they think will be some time next year.

Everything of the very finest will be put into the building and the total cost will mount up to $250,000. The chairs that are to be installed will cost $12 each. One of the big features of the new play house will be the $40,000 pipe organ.

GENEVA, Sept. 8.—Official request for the expulsion of former King Constantine from Switzerland has not as yet been received from Athens by the Swiss government, according to information received from Berne.

Causes Arrest of Her Sister

In default of $500 bail, Josephine Malnerich, aged 20, and residing at 1108 Herman avenue, is in the city prison with a charge of assault with a deadly weapon lodged against her. The complaining witness is Margaret Malnerich, aged 17, a sister.

From the story that was told to Police Judge Odell at the time the complaint was signed, it seems as if there had been bad feeling between the sisters for some time. For a long time the older sister, who is now in jail, has been away from home.

Last night the sisters got into an altercation, and names that are not very pleasant to hear were called each other. Finally hawpuling was indulged in, and as a climax Margaret asserts her older sister pulled a paring knife from her corset and made several lunges at her, cutting several severe gashes in her left arm. Dr. W. S. Lucas was summoned and dressed the wounds, and afterwards the injured girl and her brother appeared at the police station and told the officers her story.

VOTERS ARE STRONG ON DIVISION OF COUNTY

No proposition that has been advanced in years, has met with such a universal expression of approval, as the announcement made in the Record-Herald yesterday morning that a movement was under way to form a city and county of Richmond.

If a vote was held on the question tomorrow it is safe to say that it would be almost unanimous. Attorneys have been at work looking into the details of the law regarding such a move, and the proper papers are being prepared.

In 1897 Contra Costa county had an assessed valuation of about $11,000,000 and its tax rate was $1.65. Richmond alone now has over $20,000,000 and taking in the contiguous territory it will bring the total up to over $25,000,000.

HARBOR SLOGAN CONTEST IS EXTENDED ONE WEEK

Prizes for the harbor bonds campaign slogans written by school pupils are being awarded.

The contest will continue one week, carrying it till next Wednesday, including that day, as many pupils that wished to write slogans have not perfected their lines yet. Your slogan must be in the mail not later than next Wednesday to be considered. None that arrives later than Thursday morning will be passed upon.

So hurry and take a chance of winning $2.50 cash, with the added chance of $5 to be given in addition for each of the two slogans, the secret committee selects as the best. That committee wouldn't dare to have the names comprising it announced.

The two opening prizes awarded have gone to Miss Helen E. Moore and Miss Catherine Head. Their slogans are respectively "Open the Gates to the world--Vote for Harbor Bonds" and "Keep the 'Rich' in Richmond; Vote the Harbor Bonds."

Other slogans will be appearing open for them, and if yours appears call on Campaign Manager H. A. Johnston, whom the Chamber of Commerce Campaign Committee has instructed to pay the prizes.

Revenue officers from San Francisco yesterday afternoon raided the Maxwell hotel bar at No. 3 Richmond Ave. on the west side and confiscated a quantity of liquor. The jugs were sealed and taken to the police department for safe keeping.

It is reported that J. Brodersen, the proprietor was arrested and taken to San Francisco.

Many other places in the city are being watched, and it is stated the officers say the dry law is being openly violated in Richmond.

Harry Rawson of the Richmond Cooperative Store returned yesterday from Sacramento, where he spent several days in attendance at the State Fair.

Pleas of Not Guilty Made By McDevitt and Brown

P. K. McDevitt, owner of a cigar store at 519 Macdonald avenue, whose place was raided about a week ago by Chief of Police Wood and a squad of officers and "Tex" Brown, and both men charged with maintaining a place where gambling was conducted appeared in the police court yesterday and entered pleas of not guilty.

The six players who were arrested at the same time appeared in court and their cases were set for the 16th of this month. At that time the trials of McDevitt and Brown will be set.

Masons Plan $250,000 Temple

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Masonic Temple Association held last evening there was a large number present, and most encouraging reports were received. The number of stockholders is being increased daily.

The association has purchased the eighty-five feet on the southwest corner of Tenth and Macdonald avenue, and it is their plan next year to erect a temple that will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. The building will be three stories in height, will have stores on the first floor on Macdonald avenue and Tenth street, and the two upper floors will be devoted to offices and lodge and banquet rooms.

RICHMOND MAN SELLS HIS MARTINEZ HOME

J. J. Daley of this city has sold his house and two lots on West Main street, Martinez Park, to Mrs. Elizabeth A. Savage. The consideration was in the neighborhood of $300.

Fight Over Right Motor Busses to Operate Is On

The hearing of the application of the Western Motors Transport company for permission to continue to operate its busses from Fourth and Macdonald avenue to Oakland, will be resumed Friday morning at the City Hall before examiner Hugh Gordon of the railroad commission. The entire day Wednesday was taken up with the taking of testimony, and when the hour of adjournment came, it was not completed. Just what will be the outcome of the hearing is not known, as but little of the testimony of the San Francisco Oakland Terminal Railway company has been offered as yet.

Array of Attorneys
There was a large array of attorneys at the hearing. D. J. Hill appeared for the city of Richmond, the street car company was represented by attorneys Clark and Whit. (Continued on Page Three)

Martinez Has City Tax Rate of Nearly $6.00

With the setting of the county tax rate by the board of supervisors at $2.40, and special levies for school purposes totaling $1.50, the city of Martinez faces a tax this year of about $5.98.

With the assessed valuation of the city increased over the valuation of the county by 60 per cent, calculating from a basis of the county figures, the city tax will be $2.48. From the $2.40 county tax, the road tax is subtracted, leaving the county tax in Martinez $2. Adding the three together, the tax in Martinez this year will be about $5.98 on the $100.

OLIVE THOMAS, ACTRESS, TAKES POISON DOSE

PARIS, Sept. 8.—Olive Thomas, the American movie star, was recovering in the hospital today from a dose of poison, taken according to friends, under the belief that it was a sleeping powder. It was stated that Miss Thomas was suffering from insomnia. Her husband, Jack Pickford was with her at the hospital today.

MASONS AND FAMILIES TO ENJOY PICNIC AT EAST SHORE PARK

A Masonic picnic will be enjoyed at East Shore Park today by the members of Alpha Lodge 431 and McKinley Lodge 447. The fun will begin at 10:30, the events of the forenoon being a baseball game and a tug of war, in which the two lodges will be opposing rivals. After the lunch hour there will be dancing until evening.

Other events for the afternoon will include a 50 yard race for married ladies, 100 yard race for married men, a 25 yard dash for fat men, 25 yard race for fat ladies, various races for boys and girls, a 50 yard wheelbarrow race for men, lady in each barrow, a 25 yard wheelbarrow race for ladies, man in each barrow. Then there will be potato races, sack races, a three legged race and a relay race. The general committee on arrangements for the picnic consists of W. H. Boyd and Hutt Brown. Refreshments committee, T. M. Dunlap and J. McGrath. Sport committee: J. T. Koevec, G. I. Conn and L. W. Schroeder. Dancing committee: Al Hall and J. J. Coward.

OFFICIAL PAPER CITY OF RICHMOND

THINKOGRAPHS by F. J. HULANISKI

BOLSHEVISM MUST FALL

Bolshevism must fall and fall because it is based upon false premises. Nothing based upon wrong ideas and theories can ever become successful. It must go to pieces of its own weight in due time.

Bolshevism, and much of Socialism, adheres to a theory to the effect that all those who engage in production must align themselves in two implacable hostile camps and classes and fight until one destroys the other. It is founded on as false and shallow a fallacy as ever hatched in the brain of man—this notion of an inveterate hostility between the interests of capital and the interests of labor, so that one can prosper only at the expense of the other. If there were no Russian example common sense and experience could still affirm positively that reconstruction would fail to make progress in any country exactly in proportion as such a destructive idea prevailed, for if there is anything common sense and experience know it is that men prosper by co-operation and not by fighting.

Buyers and sellers represent opposing interests; one wants the goods cheap, the other wants them dear. They do not fight, but sit down and dicker until they reach a point where they can agree, and at that point both of them profit by trading. The interests of capital and labor are in opposition to the same degree only. Bolshevism would prevent them from agreeing. Kill off all the capitalists today and divide up all that they have with all the people, and in six months a new breed of capitalists would emanate from those who received the division, and they in turn would have to be killed off. Bolshevism has microbes in the head where brains are supposed to reside.

RADICALS CONTROL NEW PARTY

A militant minority, backed by a righteous cause, is conceded to be a powerful force, but a third or fourth party, if it be supported largely by radicals, disgruntled politicians and idealists, has a very limited scope and cannot hope for any material success. Such has always been the record of such mushroom organizations.

Any conservative labor leader will say at once that in order to right any grievance or accomplish anything worth while it is necessary to become allied with a large and potent political organization. The so-called Farmer-Labor party is already going the route of numerous other tail-end parties, and its end seems nigh. The dispatches tell of defections which must be the forerunners of dissolution. In the first place, the Farmer-Labor appellation is a misnomer. It does not in any manner represent the farmers of the country, nor does it typify the requirements of the labor organizations.

At the time of launching this third or fourth party it was claimed that its leaders were ultra-radical and belonged to the I. W. W. ranks for a proper classification. And now reports from Salt Lake, the home of P. P. Christensen, standard-bearer of the party, indicate that disintegration has commenced and that the internal dissension is traceable to I. W. W. sources, which is in control of the Utah branch of the party. When radicals like LaFollette and Clifford Pinchot cannot stand a new organization it sure must be pretty raw.

The passing ages change exteriors, but the substance underneath is forever the same. We want food, raiment, shelter and warmth. That was what our prehistoric ancestors wanted. To attain that they were grasping, greedy and selfish. We are the same.

A hardship we encounter when we're very, very young, is having some old doctor keep us sticking out our tongue.

If men and women did not fall in love with each other's husbands and wives, get divorces and murder each other, it would put the Associate Press out of business.

Congress appropriates millions for battleships and more millions to help out afflicted foreign countries, which, while all right, goes to prove that it could also appropriate a few millions to amalgamate.

A real good politician is generally not good for anything else worth mentioning.

Taft says Harding is for a league of nations, and Hiram Johnson says he is against such a league. After reading all the dope to date, we are inclined to believe that it is barely possible that both are right.

If we keep right on reducing the hours of work, and that in turn keeps helping to raise the price of living, it is only a question of time until none of us will have to work at all, and none will have anything to eat. The former would be just splendid, but the latter don't sound so good. Our belt is buckled up several holes too many now.

There is a cause for every effect. The dishonest politician is the cause of bad laws and the non-enforcement of good laws. To cure any effect the cause must be removed. It should not take a lawyer to figure this out.

This much can be said in favor of Colonel Bryan: When he goes fishing he does not carry the bait in a bottle under his coat.

It makes a whole lot of difference to the delegates to a political convention whether they are in front of or behind the steam roller.

New School at Stege Will Cost District $45,000

Stege is to soon have a fine new addition to its school, as Architect Harbott has the plans for the proposed new building for that school nearly completed. The new unit will be modern in every respect, of rame construction with plaster finish, and will contain five class rooms, auditorium, manual training and domestic science. The building will face east and actual work will probably begin in course of a month. The cost is to be $45,000.

New Oil Concern Asks Supervisors Wharf Franchise

The Petroleum Products company, constructing an oil refinery at Sheppard's canyon near Martinez, at the present time, applied to the Board of Supervisors on Tuesday for a wharf franchise. October 18th was set by the board as the date for the hearing on the application.

ALAMEDA WOMAN HELD FOR DEATH OF CHILD

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 8. — Although exonerated by Coroner Phelan of all criminal responsibility in the death of Helena Hawley, 11, Miss Harriet S. Sargent of Alameda, Cal., was bound over to the Superior court in $2500 bonds by the prosecuting attorney here today on a charge of manslaughter. Helena Hawley was killed August 31, when struck by an automobile operated by Miss Sargent.

CONTRACTOR STANIGER GRANTED AN EXTENSION

J. E. Staniger, who is constructing a section of the county highway through the San Pablo Creek lead to Richmond, was granted an extension of ninety days by the supervisors to complete the work.

STRIKING PA. MINERS FIGHT STATE TROOPS

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 8.—Rioting broke out today in the anthracite coal strike district. For half an hour a large number of men battled at Pittston before state troops, with drawn clubs, were able to disperse them. Many of the strikers received bruises and cuts but none was seriously injured.

Although this is Admission Day, nobody will be admitted to the Richmond stores, nearly all of which will remain closed until tomorrow. And of course most of our husbands forgot to take home things our better halves told us not to forget. 'Twer ever thus.

BUM RUNNERS WILL MAKE $100,000,000

DETROIT, Sept. 8.—Profits running into millions of dollars will be taken by rum runners operating between Canada and the Detroit district during 1930, according to estimates based upon figures by American and Canadian revenue officers. In some quarters the estimates of profit from illicit liquor sales run as high as $100,000,000 for the present year.

Stories of fortunes made overnight and of scores of liquor rings ranging in size and operations from groups of Canadian farmer boys, who buy and sell whiskey by the quart, to liquor brokers, whose sales are measured in terms of boatloads, are being heard along both sides of the international boundary between Michigan and Ontario.

Prohibition enforcement agents are greatly hampered by lack of motor boats. It is said to be practically impossible to catch whiskey smugglers without fast craft.

CUBA PUTS EMBARGO ON RICE IMPORTATIONS

HAVANA, Sept. 8.—President Menocal issued a decree yesterday prohibiting importation of rice until January 1, 1931, except under government license. This step was taken as a means of arriving at a solution of the financial problem that arose between Cuban importers and American exporters of rice, through the failure of the former, after a slump in the market to fulfill contracts covering between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 worth of that product shipped to this city.

The decree directs Cuban consuls and consular agents to refuse to issue exportation documents unless officially authorized by cable to do so.

Reports Indicate Hartnett Is on Road to Recovery

Reports from the bedside of Councilman John N. Hartnett at the Meritt hospital last evening, are to the effect that he is getting better, and there is every hope that he will recover from the operation for appendicitis.

This will be good news to his many friends in this city.

Mrs. M. V. Hall and sons Preston and Clifford, and Mrs. Dunbar and niece, Miss Edith Pleth, all of Lodi, were here yesterday on a combined business and pleasure trip. They have been making an auto tour during the hot weather. Mrs. Hall owns property here and is an enthusiastic booster for Richmond. She and her sons will probably locate here in the near future.

CITY RICHMOND BEING THROWN INTO SURGE OF PROSPERITY

Events of moment are crowding fast on each other's heels here, throwing Richmond into a surge of prosperity. It is proving a year of fast progress for the city.

Proctor and Gamble Plant
Architects for the Proctor & Gamble Company, the $100,000,000 Cincinnati corporation that has selected Richmond as the location for its Pacific Coast manufacturing plant and shipping terminal, are already at work in connection with the building plans for this enterprise.

A great plant like this requires the skilled labor of the highest class architects, engineers and other experts in preparing building plans, in laying off the land so that shipping facilities, rail yards and the structures may all blend into the most convenient arrangement, and in carefully checking every detail, that the greatest efficiency and the most substantial construction may be obtained.

New Steamship Company

The Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Steamship Company, one of the largest shipping corporations of the country has made Richmond its western terminal. It has purchased a number of steamers from the Shipping Board and will begin docking vessels at the Richmond Municipal Terminal as soon as the capacious warehouses that are to be added to Warf No. 1 are erected.

Certain-Teed New Factory
The Certain-Teed Products Corporation is finishing its new paint factory, adding another major industrial plant to Richmond's list.

Certain-Teed is expected also to establish a linoleum and oil cloth factory here. It has purchased for $3,000,000 the plant of Thomas Potter & Sons of Philadelphia, one of the largest in this line. Richmond will get an immediate benefit, as distribution of these goods for the Western and Pacific ocean markets will be made from the warehouses of the factory in this city.

The $8,000,000 construction job that Standard Oil has under way and stopped for want of material, has started up again and is going ahead to completion.

Winchaven Is Larger

The $3,000,000 Winchaven plan that it was feared would be slowed down by prohibition, has developed into an industry bigger than ever, making grape juice, wine for sacramental purposes, vinegars and other products. All the grape crushing formerly done at many wineries is to be centered there, adding a large new rail and water tonnage. New concrete wharves and a coopersage plant have been added. A great cold storage warehouse has been built.

A plant for the making of high grade carbons and a furniture factory are among the newest industries.

Increase in assessable wealth proves Richmond's progress. The jump this year is $3,882,758, the total roll being $24,312,535, against $20,429,777 last year.

An Imposing List

It is an imposing list of activities that Richmond is able to present—a list that compels attention of all who are trying to figure where the biggest opportunity lies.

OFFICERS RAID CELLAR AT MARTINEZ

Following a hand to hand battle at Martinez, in which pistol butts were used and in which S. Bardell, now under arrest, was knocked out by Under Sheriff William Veal, there is now stored in the sheriff's office a quantity of liquor valued at $4000. Bardell is charged with violating the national prohibition law and with the theft of a quantity of dishes, the search for which brought about his arrest on the liquor charge.

Under Sheriff Veale and Deputy Sheriff H. F. Brady entered Bardell's store with a search warrant on good authority that he had taken a quantity of dishes from a box car at the depot. The car of dishes was en route to San Francisco and was sidetracked here, during which time the shipment of dishes disappeared. Upon entering the basement under the store the authorities were confronted by Bardell and several assistants who refused to let them enter. Bardell showed fight. Several blows were struck with pistol butts during which time Bardell was knocked out and placed under arrest.

Upon entering the basement the officers found a still, said to be one of the most complete that has been taken in this county, and a large quantity of first class liquor, valued at $1000.

In the basement the officers also found, they say, a part of the dishes which had been taken from the box car.

Reception for Officers of the Eastern Star

The birthday party that Acantha Chapter O. E. S. had planned for the 10th of this month has been postponed and in its place a reception will be given to the 1920 Patrons and Matrons of the order.

An interesting program has been arranged, which will be followed by a banquet and dancing.

The ladies in charge of the affair are Mesdames Topping, Stidham, Pemberton, Ardery, Pollett, Lee, Swearingen, Knott, Thayer, Kurtz, Slattery, Miller, Odell and Long.

Application for Richmond S. F. Ferry Is Pending

Although there is talk of the Six Minute Ferry increasing its capitalization and establishing a ferry system between this city and San Francisco, before it can be done application for a permit will have to be made to the railroad commission.

There is now one application before that body which has been pending for the past six of eight months, the Richmond San Francisco Ferry Company, and this application will have to be decided upon, before any other is taken up.

It is stated that the railroad commission will render a decision on the application before it by the end of the week.

McCausland Is Becoming Terror Auto Speeders

Local courts might profit by the good example being set by Judge McCausland of San Pablo. Whenever the motor vehicle law is violated and the violator is brought before him he hands him what is coming, thus helping out justice and the county treasury at the same time. Yesterday was his busy day, and H. L. Phinney of Berkeley got $5, W. E. Benhow of Oakland $15; Louis Gark of Oakland $5; Chester Hunt of San Francisco $5; F. E. Peret $20 and H. E. Naylor $5.

Wife Charges Her Husband With Battery

The case of Jack Martin of 233 Macdonald avenue, arrested about ten days ago on a charge of battery preferred by his wife Grace L. Martin, was to have come up for trial before Judge Odell yesterday, but on request of attorneys was continued for one week.

The wife charges that her husband beat her up, and the facts in the case will be brought out at the trial.

WORK ON MANUAL TRAINING BUILDING AT HIGH SCHOOL

Work on the new manual training building for the Richmond schools is progressing satisfactorily. The builders are now working on the foundation. The building is to be ready for use the first of the year, in time for the new semester.

FIGHT OVER MOTOR BUSES OPERATING

He, and for the motor company appeared attorney T. H. DeLap, Richmond, and H. H. Sanborn of the firm of Sanborn and Roehl of Oakland.

The council chambers were packed with an interested throng, many of whom had been summoned as witnesses.

Hanford on Stand.

H. H. Hanford, the president of the motor company, was the first witness. He told that since the case had started, August 19th, to the present time they had carried on this city and Oakland 17, 243 passengers, and the traffic was increasing all the time. Ten additional buses had been contracted for, and as soon as these arrived they would be placed in service and a ten minute service inaugurated. The trip from this city to Oakland is made in four to five minutes.

Ziemer Gives Data

H. K. Ziemer, the manager of the motor company, was the next witness. He stated that on the basis of the report that had been made by McHugh and Garretson, a firm of certified accountants, that was their opinion that the records of the railroad commission showed the company had a franchise from Oakland to Richmond that he had invested $20,000 in the company.

Others had made large investment. The cost of the fourteen cars that the company has recently purchased was $84,000. The records of the company show that of the traffic carried that sixty per cent is picked up at Fourth and Macdonald, and the remaining forty per cent is taken on between the point and Twenty-third street. The same percentage holds true at the starting point in Oakland at Eighth and Broadway.

Klatt on the Stand

The next witness was O. H. Klatt, the secretary of the company. He stated that after the buses had been running down the avenue that it was suggested to them that they do something to bring people into this city. The suggestion was adopted, and the through Sacramento buses are now diverted from San Pablo avenue, and come into Richmond by way of Tenth street, and then down to Cutting boulevard. Many people who had bought through tickets, their drivers had informed them, were now dropping out at Richmond.

The Traction Company Late in the afternoon, General

New Robes To Be Purchased For Pythians

At the last meeting of Richmond Lodge K of D the attendance far exceeded the expectations of the officers. Two new members were admitted—one by transfer and one reinstatement. Five Pages were proved in the Rank of Esquire and 44 Esquires were charged in the rank of Knight, the initiatory work of this Rank was made more impressive by the use of stereopticon views which made the work very interesting to the members of the lodge as well as to the candidates.

A committee was appointed to devise ways and means of purchasing new robes for the officers of the lodge and the degree team. C. F. Donnelly was appointed chairman of this committee and will be supported by able assistants, two of which were appointed by the Chancellor Commander, the balance of the committee to be selected by the chairman.

At the next convention, Friday, September 10, the Knight Rank will be conferred on a Class of Esquires. School of instructions will be held for Esquires at Pythian Castle, with able instructors in charge, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week.

Saturday, September 11, El Assem Temple No. 192 D. O. K. K. will hold a special ceremonial at Odd Fellows Hall, Oak Park, (Sacramento). All DeKeyes are invited and especially requested to bring tyros for initiation.

perintendent Harris of the Traction company took the stand and told of the investment of the company. He stated that in the line from Oakland to Richmond the company had invested $506,000, on which was operated thirty-three cars. The investment on the S.F.H. street line and the Twenty-third street and the Grand Canyon lines totaled $206,000, and the equipment for the branches was $24,000. Harris told them there was no need of the bus line, that his company was offering a ten minute service and that it answered every purpose.

At this point in the proceedings an adjournment was taken.

FORESTERS MEET

The Independent Order of Foresters, after the regular business meeting last night at its lodge rooms in the Bank Hall, enjoyed an evening of entertainment given by members. Refreshments were served after the program.

Norma Talmadge in "Yes or No" at The Richmond

"If you would remain young long after the allotted time for its passing has occurred thing youth," advises pretty and youthful Norma Talmadge, who will entertain the patrons of the Richmond Theater today in her latest big success, "Yes or No?" A First National attraction.

"Youth, like countless other things in life, depends largely upon our mental attitude toward it. If you refuse to allow yourself to be old, it will surprise you how long old age will be in approaching. Your thought will frighten this dread monster away. I know a charming old lady well passed her eightieth birthday who does not look a day older than fifty—and why? Simply because she refuses to allow herself to grow old. She is the constant companion of her grand-children and enters into all their pastimes and social gatherings with the zest and understanding of a girl of their own age. And in doing so she unconsciously imbues the spirit of youth which is reflected in her physical and mental condition. I truly believe that she will live to be well over a hundred.

On the same bill will be a Harold Loyd comedy and a Pathe News reel.

DEATH THOMAS FAGUNDES

Thomas Fagundes, a native of Portugal, aged 59 years, and who resided at 765 South Thirty-first street, died Wednesday morning. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Candida Gagundes, and the following sons and daughters: Mrs. Mary Espenola of Hanford, P. M. and M. Fagundes of Richmond and Mrs. L. Avila of Richmond.

OFFICERS OF ELKS ADVANCED IN RANK

At its meeting Tuesday night, Richmond Lodge of Elks, advanced Leading Knight Harry Jones to the post of Loyal Knight, on account of the resignation of W. R. Selby, who has moved to El Segundo. Frank Gordon was advanced to leading knight and Constable Arthur Alstrom to esquire. Fifteen delegates have been chosen to represent the lodge at the state reunion at Sacramento next month.

VOTERS IN FAVOR DIVISION OF COUNTY

A city and county of Richmond would mean that everything would be centralized, and that the expense of the county government would be at a minimum.

The greatest expression that is heard is that the western end of the county is not fairly dealt with, and that although the state law provides that no county road tax shall be collected from incorporated cities, a way has been found to avoid the provisions of the statute by dumping large sums of money into the general fund, and then taking it out and using it on the country roads, thereby making the cities pay for something which the law says they should not.

Among a few of the many expressions picked up on the street yesterday are the following:

Justice of the Peace John Ruth—We have the wealth and population to warrant a city and county for this end.

Wilbur S. Pierce, attorney—I favor any movement that is for the betterment of Richmond.

A. J. Read, merchant—A new county for this section means increased prosperity.

H. Marcus, manager of the Big Store—Our population has reached such a point that we are entitled to have a voice in our own affairs.

L. Garfinkle of Garfinkle's incorporated—Condensed area means greater efficiency. Sure I am for a new county.

F. B. LaMoine, president of the LaMoine Drug company—The betterment of Richmond is always uppermost in my mind. I believe a new county would mean great things for me.

J. F. Stierwater, grocer—Only by forming a new county can we secure that to which we are entitled.

Secretary J. W. Wallace of the Chamber of Commerce stated last evening, that parties had called him up from El Cerrito and Crockett, and assured him of their support for the movement that the citizens of Richmond have launched to secure a new county.

Third Payment of Income Taxes Due Next Week

About 25,000 income taxpayers of this district who have installment accounts with the government have received statements that the third installment is due September 15. There are 150,000 individual income taxpayers in the district, and approximately all except those receiving the statements have paid their 1919 tax in full.

WEDDED IN RICHMOND

Harry Scott of Martinez and Miss Georgia Myers of Oakland were duly and tightly tied up in the holy bonds of matrimony yesterday by Rev. Paul Little at the Wesley M. E. parsonage. He also told them of the biblical admonition to multiply and replenish the earth, which is good advice.

WHAT'S THE REASON?

Many Richmond People in Poor Health Without Knowing the Cause.

There are scores of people who drag out a miserable existence without realizing the cause of their suffering. Day after day they are racked with backache and headache; suffer from nervousness, dizziness, weakness, languor and depression. Perhaps the kidneys have fallen behind in their work of filtering the blood and that may be the root of the trouble. Look to your kidneys, assist them in their work—give them the help they need. You can use no more highly recommended remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills—endorsed by people all over the country and by your neighbors in Richmond.

Mrs. H. Dewanup, 333 14th St., Richmond, says: "I found Doan's Kidney Pills to be just what I needed when my kidneys troubled me. I had a lame back and the action of my kidneys was irregular. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. They soon relieved me and put my kidneys in good condition."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Dewanup had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back Hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

HARDING GLAD AMERICANS ARE A FREE PEOPLE

In Speech to Indiana Delegation
Republican Nominee Declares
for Security at Home

EUROPE HAS EVEN NOW
QUIT WILSON'S LEAGUE

Yet Democratic Party Leaders Would Have Us Bound by Original Pact with No American Safeguards.

"STEADY AMERICA"

"Mindful of our splendid example and renewing every obligation of association in war, I want America to be the rock of security at home, resolute in righteousness and unshakable in security and supremacy of the law."

"Let us be done with wiggling and wobbling."

"Steady America! Let us assure good fortune to all."—Senator Warren G. Harding in address before the Indiana delegation at Marion.

Marion, Ohio (Special)—Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, in a speech delivered to a delegation from Indiana which came on him here to pledge the support of Indiana Republicans, declared that President Wilson had an opportunity to obtain recognition of the League of Nations, and that he put ratification of the League of Nations on the line because he would not accept reservations designed solely to safeguard American rights. Senator Harding said:

"I greet you in a spirit of rejoicing; not a rejoicing in the narrow personal or partisan sense, but in the gratifying prospect of party triumph for the contemplation of abundance in the harvest fields and ripening corn fields and maturing orchards; not in the reassuring approach of stability after a period of wiggling and wobbling which magnified our uncertainty—though all of these are ample for our wide rejoicing—but I rejoice that America is still free and independent, and in a position of self reliance and holds to the right of self determination, which are priceless possessions in the present turbulence of the world."

"Let us suppose the Senate had ratified the peace treaty containing the League covenant as submitted to it by the President in July of last year, what would be the situation confronting our country today? To my mind, there is but one answer. Before this day we would have been called upon to fulfill the obligations which we had assumed under Article 10 of the League covenant to preserve the territorial integrity of Poland as against external aggression."

"I shall not attempt to measure the boundless sympathy for the just aspirations and restored independence of Poland. Our present concern is the international situation which Poland has brought to our attention."

"The council of the League of Nations would have reasoned, and reasoned correctly, that the United States should furnish the munitions and, if necessary, the men to withstand the hordes advancing from Russia far more easily than could the exhausted nations of Europe. Moreover, inasmuch as this would be the first test of the scheme of world government, which was formulated and demanded by the President, speaking for the United States, the fact of a special responsibility, resting upon our shoulders, manifestly would have been undeniable. Undoubtedly the League Council, in advising upon the means by which the nations to Poland should be fulfilled, as provided in the covenant, would have so held, and probably the committee of America, certainly the committee of the world, would have suggested that the League of Nations should be maintained."

"The conclusion that four countries might now be confronted by such a situation, the Senate had ratified the League covenant, requires no stretch of the imagination. None can deny that it is possible. To many candid minds, as to my own, such a distressing situation will seem highly probable. Let us assume that the ratification had taken place. Let us assume, further, that the performance of the allotted task required the waging of war upon the Russian people, as, of course, it would, what would result? What would of necessity have to result? Nothing necessarily, we are glibly informed, since only the Congress can declare war, and the Congress might reject the appeal of the executive, but would the Congress do that? Could the Congress do that without staining indelibly the honor of the nation?"

"I answer 'No,' and I say it not on my own authority alone. Back of my judgment stands the President of the United States. Upon that point there is first hand information. In the course of the discussion which took place at the meeting of the President and the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations I raised the question by stating a hypothetical case precisely analogous to that which I have depicted, and then inquired whether we might not rightfully be regarded as a people who we should fail to contribute an armed force if called upon to do so. The President first replied, as I thought, somewhat evasively, that we would be our own judges as to whether we were obliged in these circumstances to act in that way or not. I pressed further, however, in response to a query incorporating the assumption that the case provided for and presented had arisen, that the extraneous task had not exist just as it does today in Poland, the President admitted specifically that we would be untrue if we did not keep our word."

"Replying further to a question which perhaps I ought not to have considered necessary, the President pronounced a moral obligation of course, superior to a legal obligation, and of a greater binding force."

"What then becomes of the argument that Congress, not the President, in this instance at any rate, might keep us out of war? Technically, of course, it could do so. Morally, with equal certainty, it could not do so, nor would it ever do so. The American people would never permit a repudiation of a debt of honor."

"Am I not right, my countrymen, in saying that we needed only the outbreak of war between Poland and Russia to make us realize at least one of the things which, in the words of Secretary Lansing, would have been let in for; but for the restraining hand of the Senate, and to fetch home to us the danger of committing our country in advance to causes that we know not of?"

"One can have no quarrel with those who have convinced themselves that our underlying purpose in entering the great conflict was to create a League of Nations. The fact remains, however, that no such intent was officially proclaimed, no allusion, nor even a suggestion to that effect appeared in the joint resolution of Congress, which declared the existence of a state of war between this country and Germany. For myself, I left no room for doubt of the motive which led me to cast my vote in favor of that resolution. It so happened that I made the concluding speech upon the war resolution, from my place in the Senate, on the night of April 4, 1917. These were my own words at that time: 'I want it known to the people of my state and to the nation that I am voting tonight for the maintenance of just American rights, which is the first essential to the preservation of the soul of this republic. I vote for this joint resolution to make war, not a war thrust upon us, if I could choose the language of the resolution, but a war declared in response to affronts, a war that will at least lead us into the American life, a war not for the cause of the allies of Europe, a war not for France, beautiful as the sentiment may be in reviving at least our gratitude to the French people; not precisely a war for civilization, worthy and inspiring as that would be, but a war that speaks for the majesty of the people properly governed, who finally are brought to the crucial test where they are resolved to get together and wage a conflict for the maintenance of their rights and the preservation of their covenant inherited from their fathers.'"

"We have given to the world the spectacle of a great nation that could make war without selfish intent. We unhesitatingly drew some eighteen years ago for the first time in the history of the world, in the name of humanity, and we gave proof to the world at that time of an unselfish nation. Now, whether it is the fate, or fortune, or travail of destiny, it has come to us to unheath the sword again, not alone for humanity's sake, though that splendid inspiration will be involved—but to unheath the sword against a great power in the maintenance of the rights of the republic, in the maintenance which will give to us a new guaranty of nationality. That's the great thing, and I want it known, Mr. President, and senators, that this is the compelling thought for me, for one, in casting my vote."

"It is for that same guaranty of nationality that I stand today and shall continue to stand inflexibly, so long as I shall be permitted to live. The independence of our great republic is to me a priceless and sacred inheritance. Time was when an American did not hesitate to proclaim himself a patriot. To do so now, I am well aware, is sometimes to invite the sneers of cynicism. But why should any true American not be free to say 'I am a patriot, wholly devoted to my country, which I hold to be God's best inspiration to man for higher attainment and the promotion of the world's best civilization?'"

"But I have a special reason for making this declaration today. I challenge the statement that the patriotism which holds America first comprehends either narrowness or selfishness, or as implying false suspicion and jealousy of other peoples."

"To assert, as some have asserted, heedlessly, that those of us who honestly believe that America can best serve all mankind as America, free and untrammelled, rather than as one of a pitiable minority among nations in merged world government, lack of consciousness of the rightful demands of humanity, is to utter a gross and unpardonable libel. To attribute meanness to those of us who, in the performance of our public duty, refused to participate in what we sincerely regarded as a betrayal of our own country in the interest of others, is to discredit the intelligence and discrimination of the great mass of American people who directly, by their votes, put us in our positions of trust. For myself, I yield to no man in willingness, ay, in eagerness, to render the greatest conceivable assistance to the stricken peoples of Europe. I include all of them and speak with genuinely sympathetic heart, whether it is to mention devastated France, or sorely tried Italy, or nobly struggling Poland, or distracted and misguided Russia, or gallant little Belgium, or pitifully deceived Austria, or the ruthless invader, Germany, which came to the supreme tragedy through a leadership which brought disaster to her misguided people."

"It was with that feeling of sympathy and desire to serve, that most reluctantly and with grave misgivings as I announced at the time, I with reservations designed to preserve our essential liberty of action. The record is made and under the same conditions, confronted by the same alternatives, I should vote now as I voted then. But the conditions have changed. Experience has brought enlightenment. We know now that the League constituted at Versailles is utterly impotent as a preventative of wars. It is so obviously impotent that it has not even been tried. The original League, mistakenly conceived and unreasonably insisted upon, has undoubtedly passed beyond the possibility of restoration. The mature judgment of the world will be that it deserved to pass for the very simple reason that, contrary to all of the tendencies developed by the civilizing processes of the world, it rested upon the power of might, not of right."

"The assertion is made frequently that through the agency of our nationality we might have saved the life of the covenant—that is to say, that, although twenty-eight nations could not make it function, one added to the twenty-eight would have achieved a glowing success, provided always that the one was America."

"This pays to America the tribute of exceptional influence, but I suggest if the world is dependent upon our action to bring about the supreme realization, then we ought to have the say about our own freedom in participation therein. But let us consider what is meant by this reliance upon America. What can it signify if not that it is to the United States, and to the United States alone, that the twenty-eight nations look for the bone and sinew, the money, the munitions and the men to sustain the entire organization, not as an agency of peace, but as an armed force?"

"A few days ago a delegation of an organization which calls itself a society for the prevention of war appealed to the Premier of Great Britain to furnish the troops and the means of defense of Poland, Armenia and the Dardanelles. The British Premier replied, according to his remarks quoted by the newspapers, to the effect that, while the formation of an 'international army' would be an ideal solution, it could not be accomplished because the European nations could not furnish the troops and the United States had withdrawn from co-operation—a polite and diplomatic phrase and more exactly meaning, of course, that the Senate of the United States had not completed the partial obligation assumed by the President to do that very thing—that is, to furnish the troops. Could a clearer indication of what would have been expected of this country as a member of the League of Nations be desired? Hardly. Some, too, think, or say they think, that this extraordinary service should be rendered. I do not agree with them, but, assuming that they are right, I venture to note that nothing stands in the way of performance of this service except only to call upon Congress to declare war and to confer upon him specific authority to raise armies for the protection of the power, which, though recently associated with, are still foreign to our own republic."

"It is reasonably safe to assume, however, that the President would pursue this course. Fortunately he is under no compelling moral obligation under the League to do so. His recent unhappy experience, moreover, in asking Congress to send American boys to police Armenia, would hardly encourage repetition of a request already courteously but quite firmly declined by the Congress. What then in the circumstances would be the answer of the British Premier himself? In his own words, addressing a meeting of the Coalition Liberals on August 12 last, according to the press reports, he said: 'When the terrible question of peace or war has to be decided, our first duty as a government is to the people, who must not be allowed to commit themselves to any unjustifiable adventure. Nothing but the most imperative call of national honor, national safety and national freedom can justify war. Before this country is committed to it, even in the most limited form, we must be satisfied that these are in peril.'"

"I quote these telling words, my countrymen, with the utmost satisfaction, because they state in plain English the position of the President. I take for granted that the Prime Minister meant to include in 'treasure' the greatest treasure of all, but, for myself I should leave nothing to be inferred. Foremost and above all else to be safeguarded by those of us who hold the trust of the people, it goes without saying, is the peace of the nation. Now it may appear to you that I have been speaking chiefly in the negative. I make the admission. What is more, I might continue to do so almost indefinitely without disadvantage to our cause. So many things have been done by the present expiring administration, that no power on earth could induce me to do, that I cannot even attempt to recount them. I may remark casually, however, that if I should be, as I fully expect to be, elected President of this just and honorable Republic, I will not empower an assistant secretary of the navy to draft a constitution for helpless neighbors in the West Indies and I am I do not their throats at the point of bayonet, borne by United States Marines. We have a higher service for our gallant Marines than that. Nor will I misuse the power of the executive, to cover with a veil of secrecy repeated acts of unwarranted interference in domestic affairs of the little republics of the western hemisphere such as in the past few years have not only made enemies of those who should be our friends, but have rightfully discredited our country as their trusted neighbor."

"On the other hand I will not, or shall not, as you prefer, submit to any wrong against any American citizen, with respect to either his life or his property by any government. This statement is made in all solemnity, with equity for none and friendship for all. If it is properly applied to Mexico, the application has been directed to the robbery and murder of by all means let it be appropriated. I would even go further. I would take and combine all that is good and excise all that is bad from both organizations. This statement is broad enough to include the suggestion that the League, which has heretofore rivaled our considerations and apprehensions, has been so entwined and intervened into the peace of Europe, that its good must be preserved in order to stabilize the peace of that continent, then it can be amended or revised so that we may still have a remnant of world aspirations in 1918 build into the world's highest conception of helpful cooperation in the ultimate realization."

"I believe humanity would welcome the creation of an international association for conference and a world court whose verdicts upon justifiable questions this country in common with all nations would be both willing and able to uphold. The decision of such a court or the recommendations of such a conference could be accepted without sacrificing our part or asking any other power to sacrifice one iota of its nationality."

"The Democratic nominee has spoken about America abandoning her as a League of war and deserting the allied nations in establishing the League of Versailles. I do not think it longer necessary to challenge that statement or pass further opinion upon the unfortunate league. It has already been abandoned by Europe, which had gone so far as to accept it by formal agreement in treaty. On this subject, we are fully informed at first hand. Only the other day the British Premier said unhesitatingly that the essential cooperation of America might involve some change at any rate in the form of the covenant, and he added, with characteristic outspokenness, 'It is quite possible it might be a change for the better.'"

"Listen further to the wise and far-seeing former British Ambassador, who was not permitted to present his credentials to our executive."

"As long," said Viscount Gray, hardly a month ago, "as long as the greatest, most powerful, the greatest both for population and territory, of all the countries of the world stands outside the League, the League will be unable to fulfill its destiny." To put it in quite plain terms, the Americans must be told that if they will only join the League they can practically name their own terms. Undoubtedly that is the fact. I ask, is there any good reason why we should not avail ourselves of this privilege? I do not mean in any arrogant or selfish way, but simply as a matter of fairness and right to our own people. Surely it is becoming and a duty as well, to safeguard our own people, since it is we who are the main contributors, while asking nothing for ourselves except to participate in a contribution to the promotion of world peace."

"Viscount Gray continues, 'The Americans should be entrusted with the task of drafting a reconstruction scheme.' Then he suggests further that a committee of the Senate—we must never forget the Senate's rights and duties in regard to foreign affairs—being reinforced by the members of the House of Representatives, and also by nominees of the President, and supreme court—could draw up suggestions for the reconstruction of the League, which would be consonant with the feelings not of one, but of all parties in America."

"Frankly I value that suggestion very highly, because it is proffered obviously in a helpful and friendly spirit and reveals an important Old World opinion on the necessity of amendment, revision or reconstruction. It comprehends substantially what I would propose to do if elected President. I don't mean precisely that. It would be clearly unwise to undertake specific suggestions now. What is in my mind is the wisdom of calling into real conference the ablest and most experienced minds of this country, from whatever walks of life they may be derived, and without regard to party affiliation, to formulate a definite practical plan along the lines already indicated for the consideration of the controlling foreign powers."

"The objection, strongly uttered in some quarters, that this course would involve the reconvening of the entire convention, may be regarded as a very slight one. The acceptance of our proposals by the new principal nations would undoubtedly be followed promptly by the acceptance on the part of the minor members of the alliance."

"There would be no material delay. One can not disregard the leadership or have any doubt about the influence of the principal allied and associated powers. Insofar as I could do so, without disregarding the properties, I should give very earnest and practically undivided attention to this very vital subject from the day of my election and I should ask others to do likewise as a matter of public and patriotic duty. Indeed, I should hope to have behind me, after the decision on the national referendum we are soon to have, a country wholly united in earnest endeavor to achieve a true solution of this problem upon which the future civilization so largely depends."

"I have already announced that I shall urge prompt passage of the resolution, voted by the president, declaring at an end the preposterous condition of technical war when we are actually at peace. Simultaneously I shall naturally advance the assumption by the Congress of its exceptional powers, which have been vested by war legislation in the executive. I have no expectation whatever of finding it necessary or advisable to negotiate a separate peace with Germany."

"In view of the simple fact that the allied powers with whom we were hundreds of our own people in that unhappy country who were lawfully there and were entitled to protection. One must admit that these outrages upon American soil largely the consequences of the wiggling and wobbling, the supine waiting of our own government, though the admission neither helps the hurt nor gives the hope of security for the future while the present administration remains in power, or when one in 'complete accord' succeeds it."

"This admonition is not directed exclusively toward our next door neighbor to whom we would gladly hold forth a helping hand, and whom primarily, certainly in preference to far off peoples in Europe, Asia and Africa, it is our manifest duty to serve with a whole heart and generous tolerance. It is intended for a plain notice to every government on the face of the earth that the entire resources of this nation are pledged to maintain the sacredness of American lives and the just protection of American properties."

"The line of demarcation between our attitude and that of our political opponents is perfectly plain. The President has made his position clear by his acts no less than by his words. Twice there came to him an opportunity to obtain ratification at the hands of the Senate and twice he put the opportunity aside, because he would not accept reservations designed solely to safeguard American rights. He still holds Article 10 to be the heart of the covenant. So does the Democratic nominee. So does the Democratic platform. To assume that the nominee would accept the reservations rejected by the President and denounced by the party platform is to impugn his integrity. To insinuate, as those who in proclaiming themselves for the Democratic candidates and the league with reservations, do insinuate that he would pursue such a course in seeking ratification is not to pay him a compliment but rather to challenge his sincerity. For myself, I do not question for a moment the truth of what the Democratic nominee says on this subject. He has lately said he is 'in favor of going in' on the basis announced by the President. I am not. That is the whole difference between us, but it is a most vital one, because it involves the disparity between a world court of justice supplemented by a world association for conference on the one hand, and the council of the league on the other."

"The difference between a court of international justice and the council created by the league covenant is simple, but profound."

"The one is a judicial tribunal to be governed by fixed and definite principles of law administered without passion or prejudice. The other is an association of diplomats and politicians whose determinations are sure to be influenced by considerations of expediency and national selfishness."

"I do not mean to say, nor do I mean to permit any such construction, that I would refuse to cooperate with other nations in an honest endeavor to prevent wars. Nobody living would take that position. The only question is one of method or of practicality within the bounds prescribed by fundamental principles."

"There are distinctly two types of international relationship. One is an offensive and defensive alliance of great powers, like that created at Versailles, to impose their will upon the helpless peoples of the world. Frankly, I am opposed to such a scheme as that, and I speak knowingly when I say that the associated powers, with whom we fought the war, were reluctant to accept such a proposition."

"I am opposed to the very thought of our republic becoming a party to so great an outrage upon other peoples, who have as good a right to seek their political freedom as we had in 1776 and have the same right to developing eminence under the inspiration of nationality as we held for ourselves."

"The other type is a society of free nations, or an association of free nations, or a league of free nations, animated by considerations of right and justice, instead of might and self interest and not merely proclaimed an agency in pursuit of peace, but so organized and so participated in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility. Such an association I favor with all my heart and I would make no distinction as to whom credit is due."

"This is proposing no new thing. This country is already a member of such a society—The Hague Tribunal—which, unlike the League of Versailles, is still functioning, and within a few weeks will convene for the first time under the chairmanship of an American representative."

"In that body we have the framework of a really effective instrumentality of enduring peace. The fact that the tribunal did not prevent the great war is, of course, manifest, but the cause of the failure is no less apparent. Germany, already secretly determined upon a ruthless invasion, was able to prevent the adoption of measures which might have proved effectual. The condition now is wholly different. Not only Germany, but the entire world has profited to the extent of an awful lesson, the impression of which cannot be erased from the human mind for generations to come. The horrors of war and the eagerness for peace have become universal. What once seemed at The Hague to be a mere academic discussion, has become a positive outstanding need of facing terrifying actualities. This makes vastly easier the task of so strengthening The Hague Tribunal as to render its just decrees either acceptable or enforceable. It is not uncommon for the advocates of the League of Versailles to claim that the Hague Tribunal upon the ground that the tribunal 'lacks teeth.' Very well, let's put teeth into it. If in the failed League of Versailles there can be found machinery which the tribunal can use properly and advantageously, tion to an obvious fact."

"Let us take stock for a moment of America in the world, ay, and of America at home. The end of the war found our selfishness emphasized to all mankind and the yearnings of world leadership were bestowed from every direction. We had only to follow the path of America, rejoicing in the heritage which led to our eminence, to rivet the gaze of all peoples to our standards of national righteousness and our conception of international justice. Moreover, the world was ready to give us its confidence. It was the beckoning opportunity of the centuries, not for the glorification of the new world republic, but for America to hold every outpost of advanced civilization and invite all nations to join the further advance to heights dreamed of, but never approached before. But force of example was being able for force of armed alliance. We neglected our readjustments and restorations at home and the cruel sacrifice of millions of lives and millions of treasure left us and the world groping in uncertainty and anxiety instead of revealing us in the sunlight of a new day, with lines formed ready for the onward march of peace and all its triumphs."

"Mindful of our splendid example and renewing every obligation of association in war, I want America to be the rock of security at home, resolute in righteousness and unshakable in security and supremacy of the law. Let us be done with wiggling and wobbling. Steady America. Let us assure good fortune to all. We may maintain our eminence as a great people at home and resume our high place in the estimate of the world. Our moral leadership was lost when 'ambition' sought to superimpose a reactionary theory of discredited autocracy upon the progressive principle of living, glowing democracy."

"My chief aspiration, my countrymen, if clothed with power, will be to retain that leadership not for myself, not even for my party, though honoring and trusting it as I do, but for my country, the country that I love from the bottom of my heart and with every fiber of my being above all else in the world."

"As long," said Viscount Gray, hardly a month ago, "as long as the greatest, most powerful, the greatest both for population and territory, of all the countries of the world stands outside the League, the League will be unable to fulfill its destiny." To put it in quite plain terms, the Americans must be told that if they will only join the League they can practically name their own terms. Undoubtedly that is the fact. I ask, is there any good reason why we should not avail ourselves of this privilege? I do not mean in any arrogant or selfish way, but simply as a matter of fairness and right to our own people. Surely it is becoming and a duty as well, to safeguard our own people, since it is we who are the main contributors, while asking nothing for ourselves except to participate in a contribution to the promotion of world peace."

"Viscount Gray continues, 'The Americans should be entrusted with the task of drafting a reconstruction scheme.' Then he suggests further that a committee of the Senate—we must never forget the Senate's rights and duties in regard to foreign affairs—being reinforced by the members of the House of Representatives, and also by nominees of the President, and supreme court—could draw up suggestions for the reconstruction of the League, which would be consonant with the feelings not of one, but of all parties in America."

"Frankly I value that suggestion very highly, because it is proffered obviously in a helpful and friendly spirit and reveals an important Old World opinion on the necessity of amendment, revision or reconstruction. It comprehends substantially what I would propose to do if elected President. I don't mean precisely that. It would be clearly unwise to undertake specific suggestions now. What is in my mind is the wisdom of calling into real conference the ablest and most experienced minds of this country, from whatever walks of life they may be derived, and without regard to party affiliation, to formulate a definite practical plan along the lines already indicated for the consideration of the controlling foreign powers."

"The objection, strongly uttered in some quarters, that this course would involve the reconvening of the entire convention, may be regarded as a very slight one. The acceptance of our proposals by the new principal nations would undoubtedly be followed promptly by the acceptance on the part of the minor members of the alliance."

"There would be no material delay. One can not disregard the leadership or have any doubt about the influence of the principal allied and associated powers. Insofar as I could do so, without disregarding the properties, I should give very earnest and practically undivided attention to this very vital subject from the day of my election and I should ask others to do likewise as a matter of public and patriotic duty. Indeed, I should hope to have behind me, after the decision on the national referendum we are soon to have, a country wholly united in earnest endeavor to achieve a true solution of this problem upon which the future civilization so largely depends."

"I have already announced that I shall urge prompt passage of the resolution, voted by the president, declaring at an end the preposterous condition of technical war when we are actually at peace. Simultaneously I shall naturally advance the assumption by the Congress of its exceptional powers, which have been vested by war legislation in the executive. I have no expectation whatever of finding it necessary or advisable to negotiate a separate peace with Germany."

"In view of the simple fact that the allied powers with whom we were

New Club House Being Planned For Burg Tract

A new clubhouse to be built on the Burg tract is being talked of by the Civic Center club. Plans were discussed by the club at its meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Preston Rosier. The club also decided upon holding a dance at East Shore Park soon, the arrangements being Mrs. Rosier's. Mrs. Rosier, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Spring and Mrs. Perry. The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Miss Delphina P. Ross, 2120 Roosevelt avenue, September 21.

Banks of City to Meet and Organize a Clearing House

Next Monday at the Chamber of Commerce rooms there will be a meeting of the representatives of the banks of this city at which time a Richmond Clearing House Association will be formed. The Mechanics Bank will be represented by W. L. Ballenger, the First National by C. J. Cray, the Richmond Savings by W. L. Stevenson, and the Bank of Richmond by C. S. Downing.

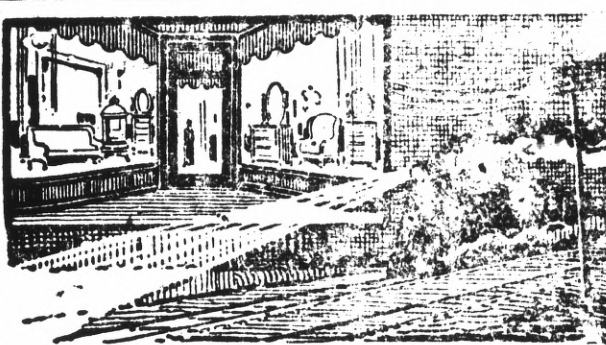

The clearings of the banks are leap-frogging by bounds, and the bankers realize the necessity of such an association. H. A. Stivers is all puffed out like a pouter pigeon now, since he killed a fine buck now in the mountains of Santa Clara county, and says Roosevelt slaughtering elephants in Africa has nothing on him.

BOILS

And High Blood Pressure
Oakland, May 17, 1920.
"From boyhood I have suffered from boils due to impure blood. My blood pressure was so high that for a long time I had severe headaches and my body was continually wet with excess perspiration.
"After having been treated by many doctors, I finally found one who cut my boils open in a fruitless attempt to cure them. When he had cut me about twenty-five times, I quit. I then tried a milder remedy in the form of the FONG WAN CHINESE HERB TEA. I took the herb tea faithfully for about three months, during which time my blood was thoroughly CLEANSED OF ALL IMPURITIES. When my blood had thus become pure and rich, my boils automatically disappeared, and my blood pressure also became normal. I therefore no longer suffer from either headaches or excess perspiration."
